QUALITY OF PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

QUALITY MANAGEMENT

We understand that the quality of our products and services is critical for our clients and for consumer safety. Airandé has therefore created quality management systems and policies and is committed to providing reliable and quality products and services through optimal performance while complying with international regulations.

Airandé' quality management system has been certified by BSI under ISO 13485 and EN ISO 1385.

INDEPENDENCE

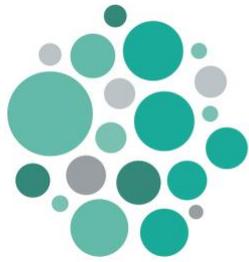

At Airandé decisions are based on scientific results, analysis, and engineering and manufacturing merits and not on personal interests or relationships that could result in unfair or impartial business decisions.

To ensure and maintain the high degree of quality and trust with our customers, Airandé is committed to providing services independently and without undue interference from customers or third parties.

ABSENCE OF CONFLICTS OF INTERESTS

Conflicts of interest and circumstances that reasonably present the appearance of a conflict should be avoided. As a general rule, we must act in the customers' best interests at all time, by applying good judgment and not allowing private interests to interfere with consumers' safety.

Receiving gifts of more than a nominal value presents a potential conflict of interest for employees. Further, you should not accept or remain in any situation in which personal investments, outside employment or advisory roles, business opportunities, or a relationship with friends or relatives could impact your ability to make objective judgments. Conflicts must be disclosed and dealt with openly and transparently.

PROTECTING THE COMPANY'S INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS

Airandé's intellectual property rights (our trademarks, logos, copyrights, trade secrets, "know-how", and patents) are among our most valuable assets. Unauthorized use can lead to their loss or serious loss of value.

Our employees, contractors, partners, and suppliers must respect all of Airandé's intellectual property rights and never use the Company's logos, marks, or other protected information or property for any business or commercial venture without prior written authorization.

Likewise, respect the intellectual property rights of others. Inappropriate use of others' intellectual property may expose Airandé and its employees, contractors, partners, and suppliers to criminal and civil penalties.

If it is necessary to disclose confidential information to outside parties, the appropriate parties must sign a Non-Disclosure Agreement (NDA) before any information is shared. NDA's do not relieve us of the responsibility to use care in deciding what information to disclose. The absence of documentation of exchanges of information or any breaches of NDA provisions may expose Airandé to the loss of the protection of its information or to damage its claims against that loss.

We are all responsible for maintaining this reputation, and so it is imperative that only those authorized to speak on behalf of Airandé are those that do so.

It is imperative to adopt necessary measures to protect the confidentiality of information provided by our clients, suppliers and business partners.

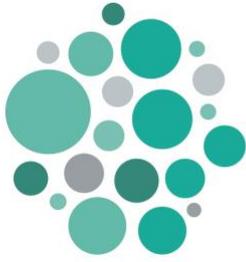

To this end, our people are strictly prohibited from appropriating or taking advantage of any confidential information learned from a third party through the course of the business relationship, or from infringing on or plagiarizing any intellectual property rights (including patents, copyrights, trademarks, or trade secrets) of a third party.

Airandé recognizes the importance of privacy as a fundamental right. Maintaining privacy of personal information of employees, former employees, job applicants, study participants, and others is paramount to us. We are committed to putting systems in place to promote compliance with privacy laws applicable to our business in order to ensure that personal information is collected, processed, stored, and transferred using adequate precautions and access is limited only to individuals having a legitimate reason to know and/or access such information.

Accordingly, Airandé will ensure that its whole-of-company approach is one that respects the privacy rights of employees as well as clients, vendors, and others with whom it works.

BUSINESS RECORDS

PUTTING IT IN WRITING

Airandé's commitment to integrity is bolstered by the proper creation, maintenance, and disposal of accurate business records. These records are valuable assets and should be carefully managed and protected. Proper recordkeeping is an essential part of compliance.

RECORD RETENTION AND DESTRUCTION

The laws in the countries we do business require Airandé to maintain certain records for specified periods of time. Failing to comply with global and local rules could result in financial penalties, sanctions or serious disadvantages in any future legal proceedings. In addition, everyone has to remember that Airandé's records are its responsibility. Airandé must be able to defend any documents that its employees created.

Employees are expected to follow Airandé's record retention and destruction policies as well as related applicable laws in the countries where Airandé does business.

CONTRACTS AND OTHER LEGAL DOCUMENTS

Valid and enforceable legal documentation strongly support Airandé's achieving its business objectives and protects it from serious business, legal, and ethical risks.

Without proper legal documentation, it can be difficult to enforce a business arrangement if there is a dispute or litigation. It can also be difficult or even impossible to recognize revenue in accordance with accounting rules, or to hold another party accountable to Airandé.

Carefully documenting services provided to the Company by intermediaries such as consultants, advisors, agents, specialists, or distributors is a must. Payments to such parties should be carefully set to correspond fairly to the services provided and must be properly entered in the Company's books.
